Brumfield Receives Highest REALTOR Honor

Gayla Brumfield, REALTOR from Clovis, was honored as recipient of the REALTORS Association of New Mexico's (RANM) highest honor – being named 2009 REALTOR of the Year.

Brumfield received this award during ceremonies at the RANM Annual Conference at Hotel Encanto de Las Cruces, September 10th.

The RANM REALTOR of the Year is awarded annually to an outstanding leader who has committed time, talent, and expertise to the REALTOR organization, their community, and to furthering the real estate profession.

Gayla Brumfield began her real estate career in 1978 at Colonial Real Estate in Clovis. She eventually purchased this firm and serves today as its Qualifying Broker. Gayla has served on nearly every Clovis Board and RANM committee, including serving as Clovis Board President in 1985 and RANM President in 2004.

Gayla has also represented New Mexico at the National Association of REALTORS as a director and member of several committees. She currently serves as Federal Political Coordinator for Senator Tom Udall. She is also a current member of the New Mexico Real Estate Commission and a past chairperson of NMREC.

She is also very active in her community, currently serving as Mayor of the City of Clovis.

Gayla was born in West Texas; her family moved to Clovis when she was a child. Gayla graduated from Clovis High School and in 1972 married Don Brumfield. They are the parents of two children and have three grandchildren.

Brumfield will be honored with other state REALTORS of the Year during the National Association of REALTORS Annual Convention, November 11-16 in San Diego, California.

The REALTORS Association of New Mexico is one of the state's largest trade associations, representing over 7,000 members involved in all aspects of the residential and commercial real estate markets throughout New Mexico.
